But there's no ship as can match the Interceptor for speed.

Oh,thatwemightbepurgedofeverthinkingagainthatourneglectingofHislo as he says, I agree: The Pursuit of What Matters is not about a place but about a state of mind. The man of inner wealth wants nothing from outside but the negative gift of undisturbed leisure, to develop and mature his intellectual faculties, that is, to enjoy his wealth; in short, he wants permission to be himself, his whole life long, every day and every hour.
