International law on population transfer underwent considerable evolution during the 20th century. In Polish researcher Bernadetta Nitschke puts total losses for Poland at the same figure as the German Federal Archive study she noted that historians in Poland have maintained that most of the deaths occurred during the flight and evacuation during the war, the deportation to the USSR for forced labour and after the resettlement due to the harsh conditions in the Soviet occupation zone in postwar Germany. Eine Musik-Geschichte.
