Gaspar, Vitor. The silk-worm answers as well here as in any part of the world. The people of England would pull down the Parliament House, if their present heavy burdens were not transferred from them to you.

Those who advise you to do it are not your friends, but your greatest foes. But I digress! First, that the necessity of the times requires it; secondly, that it be not the probable source of greater evils than those it pretends to remedy; and lastly, that it have a probability of success. Related topics Categories. As a military aide to George Washington, critic of the Articles of Confederation, proponent of ratification of the Constitution, first Secretary of the Treasury, and leader of the Federalist Party, Hamilton devoted himself to the creation of a militarily and economically powerful American nation guided by a strong, energetic republican government. He handled letters to Congress, state governors, and the most powerful generals in the The Revolutionary Writings of Alexander Hamilton Army ; he drafted many of Washington's orders and letters at the latter's direction; he eventually issued orders from Washington over Hamilton's own signature.
