On this subject we need but recall for one moment the examples recorded in history. Of these facts there cannot be any shadow of doubt: for instance, that civil society was renovated in every part by Christian institutions; that in the strength of that renewal the human race was lifted up to better things-nay, that it was brought back from death to life, and to so excellent a life that nothing more perfect had The Encyclicals of Pope Leo XIII known before, or will come to be known in the ages that have yet to be.

Refreshandtry.Ratingdetails. Women, again, are not suited for certain occupations; a woman is by nature fitted for home-work, and it is that which is best adapted at once to preserve her modesty and to promote the good bringing up of children and the well-being of the family. Such inequality is far from being disadvantageous either to individuals or to the community.

Here, however, it is expedient to bring under special notice certain matters is another and deeper consideration which must not be lost sight of.
